Greetings!

Welcome to our June 2011 Newsletter! We've had an exciting spring and start of summer, from DIA, to rolling out our new Webinars program, updating our GCP Guides, and training, and we would love to tell you all about it! And as always you can check our blog for more updates!

DIA Meeting 2011 Success in Chicago

We just returned from a successful DIA meeting where we met with current and future clients and learned the most up-to-date information on the conduct of clinical trials. On Tuesday our CEO/President, Lorraine D. Ellis presented techniques to Optimizing Site Performance to a large audience. For more information on the presentation, visit our website (www.resdyncg.com).

The sessions were interesting and new ideas were abundant. Training was a hot topic at the meeting especially training records and ensuring that all staff has the proper and current training to perform their jobs properly. As usual GCP compliance was also in discussion.

We even managed to visit all the hundreds of booths in the exhibit hall although it did take a full 3 days!

On-Site Training Classes A Cost Effective Solution For Large Groups:

Recently we delivered a presentation on "Practical Approaches to Challenging Clinical Trial Collaborations". Since successful clinical trials are a result of many team members from many different disciplines, communication is critical. This presentation provided insight into improving clinical trial team performance and communication for better trial results.

Feedback from the session indicated a successful learning experience:

"You provided our staff with ...sensible advice... Your perspective proved very valuable, as you have a wide-ranging background in the field and can understand the difficulties we face.... Your suggestions were very practical and easy to implement."

Webinar: Investigator Training And Responsibilities

Repeat of our June Webinar due to popular request.
July 27, 12:30 - 2:00pm EST

If you missed the June 3rd session, you now have a second chance to learn what FDA describes as Investigator responsibilities and how FDA will hold Investigators responsible for study performance. This Webinar will provide details on such topics as Investigator Supervision, trial planning, delegation and protecting subjects.

A student from this webinar noted "I really appreciate all the information that Lorraine shared... I hold Lorraine's information in high regard as she has been in the industry a very long time and has followed how the events have changed over the years."
